35 CLAIMED IN HEAT WAVE IN BRITISH ISLES

Factories Close, Bankers Discard Coats Breaking All Moral Ideals.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Holding virtually all of Europe in a sweltering grip, a heat wave of almost unprecedented proportions had taken a toll of 35 lives in Britain today, with scores of prostrations and many industries at an absolute standstill.

Coming on the heels of wintery weather, the heat wave descended like a pall over Britain and the continent. The heat record for all time in England was broken when the official meteorologist reported the temperature at 93.5 in the shade.

Throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles, business and industry capitulated to the enervating heat. Mills and factories in Wales and northern England were shut down, their workers finding it impossible to endure the intense heat of the furnaces. A large number of prostrations were reported in factories and steel mills.

In London, the bankers of Lombard and Throckmorton streets violated a tradition of years by discarding their waistcoats, becoming for the first time something other than the impeccably groomed business men they have been from time immemorial. Other workers went even further, and the streets were full of men in their shirtsleeves, a sight which gave the "oldest residents" something to think about.

Temperatures ranging from 90 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit were reported from various cities of Europe, the industrial centers being the hottest. The wave. An exhibition of candles and chocolates at London's famous Crystal Palace was demolished completely when the blazing sun streaming through the glass roof reduced the exhibits to streaming, rivulets and shapeless masses.

Putting psychology to practical usage, the British broadcasting company enlisted the services of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer, who stood before a microphone last night and regaled millions of listeners with tales of the icy north. The time-honored custom of four o'clock tea was temporarily abandoned, in business offices, iced soft drinks taking the place of the ancient English beverage.

TARVIA LAYING ON HIGHWAYS BEING RUSHED

Thirty Local Workmen Employed In Treating Many of the City's Streets.

The placing of tarvia on various streets in the city has nearly been completed under the supervision of L. E. Miller, service director, and when the gutters and small alleys have been given the finishing touches everything will be fine.

Traffic has been turned on Mound-st., as the tarvia laying has been completed there, however as yet motorists have not been allowed on Pickaway and Washington-sts., as the street is not in condition for travel.

About 30 local workmen were given jobs by the service director some two weeks ago, and the tarvia laying will probably be completed this week or the first of next week.

When completed the streets will have a nice finish, and in some cases will compete with paved streets. Probably some people would be interested in knowing how the streets are treated. First a three-inch coat of pea-gravel is spread on the street, and as soon as this has been leveled off, and is ready for tarvia, the large tarvia truck belonging to T. D. Van Camp of Columbus, spreads a thick coat of the tarvia over the stone. Then workmen again add the finishing touches by spreading some more stone in places where it is needed.

Thus far Mound-st and Mingo-st have been fully completed, and motorists have been traveling on them and have remarked that they are fine.

A few alleys in the city where improvements are necessary badly are also being treated with tarvia, one of which is the alley between Cusins and Fearn and Davidson Hardware Store.

Probably 500 or 600 loads of pea-gravel purchased from the stone quarries in Springfield, O., were hauled on the street, and approximately 20,000 gallons of tarvia was also put on the streets.

The cost of the improvements will be paid out of the gasoline fund.

HOUNDS TRAIL WOUNDED MAN

Moonshiner Kills Two, Wounds
Two Others, Escapes Into Dense Woods.

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 29.—Two officers are dead today and two others are wounded while a posse of nearly 75 officers and infuriated citizens are trailing their wounded attacker, H. Sutherland, moonshiner, with bloodhounds through the dense wilderness of the Mohawk River valley 20 miles north-east of Eugene.

The dead men are Joe Saunders, Deputy Game Warden, and Oscar Duley, Eugene policeman and county deputy.

Lee Brown, son of Sheriff Harry Brown, and Rodney Reach, deputy, are in the hospital here with leg wounds and will recover. Saunders was shot through the heart and died almost instantly when with young Brown and Reach, they were ambushed near a cabin where Sutherland had barricaded himself after shooting and fatally wounding Duley. The deputy was shot twice in the head and three times through his body.

Sutherland slipped from his cabin refuge early today. Sheriff Brown reported, and headed for the dense timber leaving a trail of blood.

Two blood hounds were summoned to the scene and placed on the trail. The sheriff declared it would be only a matter of hours before the attacker will be captured.

Sutherland has had the reputation of being an old time mountain moonshiner and seller of whiskey. Brown said.

LIMA, O., Aug. 29.—His attempts at reconciliation apparently fruitless, Walter Burgess, 40, is dead here today from a self-inflicted bullet and his wife, Emma, 27, will probably die from wounds which he inflicted on her before he committed suicide.

Burgess and his wife had been separated for two years. He lived in Dayton.

THREE AUBURN CONVICTS DIE

Trio Charged With Inciting
Riot in Penitentiary In December.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Weeping and heartbroken, Stella Udwine, Detroit girl, today was to claim the body of her brother, Claude, one of three men who were put to death at Sing Sing prison last night. The trio was electrocuted for the Auburn prison riot last December in which a keeper and nine prisoners were killed.

An eleventh hour appeal to save her brother was made last night at Oswego, N. Y., by Miss Udwine. Accompanied by an attorney, the girl went to a hotel where Governor Roosevelt was stopping. She could not gain a hearing with the executive but talked to Samuel J. Roseman, counsel for the Governor, and appealed to Roseman to intervene with the Governor.

Roseman said Governor Roosevelt did not intend to halt the executions and she left the conference with Roseman, tears rolling down her cheeks, at about the same time her brother was led to his death.

"I can walk through this door and die like a man," said Thomas, who was executed first. As he was strapped in the chair he exclaimed: "I'll see you all in Hell some day."

Force was the second to die. "Why are you so nervous?" he asked the guards as they strapped him in. "Take it easy. I'm in no hurry."

Udwine was the last to die. He referred to the mask which was put over his face just before he was executed as "a football headgear."

"I'm just going on an exploring trip," he said, addressing the group of witnesses.

Ice Cream is Manufactured Of Hailstones

Here's a new way to make ice cream.

A few days ago a severe rain and hail storm struck Williamsport and shortly after the storm was over, John Puffinbarger, well known here, who resides on the Bennett Ater farm near Williamsport, gathered up a bucket of hail stones from his yard, and took them to his mother, who lives at Kinderhook, a distance of four or five miles.

Mrs. Puffinbarger suggested the hail be used for making ice cream, and she placed the hail stones which had fallen almost an hour around an ice cream freezer and froze a gallon of home-made ice cream to the delight of Mr. Puffinbarger and other members of the family.

S. V. HEARING SEPTEMBER 5

Final Hearing For Abandonment Schedules By Utilities Commission.

Hearing of the Scioto Valley Traction Co. application for abandonment of its lines between Columbus and Lancaster, and between Columbus, Circleville and Chillicothe, will be Friday morning, Sept. 5 at 10 o'clock.

This announcement was made Thursday from the offices of the public utilities commission in whose offices the hearing will be held.

Officials of the company claim that the line is operating at a loss and should be abandoned. They are supported in these contentions by various financial institutions. The utilities commission's engineer also testified concerning the run-down condition of the tracks, the roadbed and rolling stock. He also stressed the danger of the overhead bridge in S. Court-st. this city.

Inasmuch as members of the commission usually take their vacations in August and in order to enable an engineer to make an exhaustive investigation, the next meeting was set for early in September at which time a report from this engineer was to be received. This will also be the opportunity for the presentation of further evidence from the protestants that the line should not be abandoned.

The principal interest of the local authorities lies not so much in the abandonment of the line as in the possibility of compelling the company to remove its rails, poles, ties, etc., from the city streets and put these back into proper condition again. Indications to date have been that the city may not be able to get the company to acquiesce on this point, but efforts are still being made along this line.

The Chillicothe-Columbus line and the Lancaster-Columbus branch are both affected and included in the petition for abandonment. In fact, the Lancaster branch is said to be in worse condition than the local one.

TO FACE CHARGE

John Rush who has been in the county jail, having been arrested for Columbus authorities on a charge of non-support, was taken to Columbus Thursday by members of the Franklin-co. sheriff's department.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MURDERER OF 8 YEAR OLD

Bound With Wire and With Head Smashed, Child
Found After Search

SOUTH BEND, IND., Aug. 29.—Kidnapped by a man who offered her candy, the mutilated body of 8-year-old Marberine Appel was found in an alley early today. The girl's neck was tightly bound with strands of piano wire and the head had been deeply gashed by the slayer.

The murder occurred only an hour before the body was found, by a motorist putting this car in a garage, coroner C. B. Grunwaldt, declared.

Apparently the child had been choked to death and her head smashed with a monkey wrench or some other blunt instrument.

The entire police force, consisting of 150 officers, was mobilized in automobiles within an hour and maintained an all night search for the slayer. A volunteer group of citizens helped with the man hunt.

Examination of the body revealed that the child had been assaulted, the coroner stated. Presumably she had been held captive by the killer since the kidnapping, which occurred yesterday afternoon near her home here.

Jack Stamper, 30, was taken into custody on the complaint of the murdered girl's mother, Mrs. Edna Appel, a divorcee. Mrs. Appel told police Stamper called at her home an hour before the body was found and told her not to worry that the girl would soon be home.

The murdered child's father, as in New York City.

Two men, heard from the slayer's last by residents of the neighborhood, were said to have been seen in the area. No apparent motive for the slaying and brutal murder was formed by the police, except that the crime may have been committed by the abduction of 10-year-old Betty Jane Foster near Van Wert last week.

A stranger turned the girl into an automobile with promise of money yesterday, while she was at play with a group of companions. The driver sped away and the child was not seen again.

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES ARE LOWER, CREDIT CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, — Newspapers on the streets and roads, have played a material part in turning the automobile fatality rate downward.

The automobile death rate for 1936 has not increased since the middle of June and has shown a downward swing since the middle of July. From February to June there was an almost continuous climb in the number of automobile fatalities each month, with each succeeding thirty days higher than the preceding period.

However, for the month ending August 9 the census bureau announced that the number of deaths from automobile accidents in 78 large cities was lower than during the corresponding period of the previous year for the first time since last December.

While no cause for the decrease is assigned by the division of vital statistics, it is reasonable to believe that active efforts of the newspapers of the country in urging safety, and seeking to combat the increasing number of deaths played a material part in turning the automobile fatality rate downward, declared Col. A. B. Barber, director of the conference.

Barber pointed out that need for uniform vehicle legislation in the different states, which was brought out by the Third National conference on street and highway safety, with emphasis on the enactment of drivers' license laws and the prevention of reckless and dangerous driving has been stressed by the newspapers in recent editorials.

Hundreds of editorials have appeared on the startling aspect of the accident and fatality record of 1929, with the increase for the first six months of this year, and discussing the proposals and recommendations of the third national conference.

Barber added: "Attention has been given especially to the toll of lives at grade crossings, and to the increasing benefits of safety education among children in the schools."

"The toll of accidents and fatalities for the last year, as revealed in the report on traffic accident statistics of the National Conference, has aroused editorial demands in every state, and in Canada for a curb on reckless and careless driving, and for control by law of the privilege of operating motor vehicles on streets and highways."

THE BILLION-DOLLAR CITY

New York's budget for next year is expected to surpass $600,000,000. That is $300,000,000 more than the present year's budget. Every year it grows, and "with leaps and bounds" is a mild expression for it. The time is in sight when the government of one city will cost $1,000,000,000 a year, as much as the national government did only three decades ago.

It would not be anything to deplore, either, if the metropolis got the worth of its money. But every body knows it comes far short of that. Graft, inefficiency and folly probably take one-third.

No wonder living is high in New York. No wonder taxes are burdensome. But somehow New Yorkers on the whole don't seem to care. They're even proud of their high cost of government. It's another proof of bigness.

DIVIDING RUSSIA

Somebody is always getting excited about Russia. How it seems to be Loui Fischer, whose book "The Soviets in World Affairs," to come out Sept. 1, is reviewed by Robert Wells Ritchie for the Universal Service. He says that France and England had a secret agreement to divide up Russia as far back as Dec. 1917—an agreement unknown to President Wilson. He maintains that American soldiers died at Archangel and nearly fought Japan in Siberia while this secret agreement was in force.

Perhaps, this, should, excite us, but somehow, at this date, it doesn't. What people think of doing in the night or times of hysteria is not always what they actually do under normal conditions. Perhaps, had Russia been taken over by the Allies, something entirely different from any such plan would have been worked out.

But perhaps it gives a little weight to a certain historic statement that the desirable situation among nations is "open covenants, openly arrived at."

REUNION DAYS

The reunion of the "Sting" is not the good old family reunion down at the farm where everybody eats too much fried chicken and everything. It is a reunion of latter days saints at Kirkland. O. There are 1,800 members in the Kirkland district, which has twelve branches. One hundred and fifty of these have been attending the reunion.

What catches us is the versatility of interest displayed by these church folk. A "typical reunion day," says the dispatch, would be "Up at six, breakfast from 7:30 to 8:30, prayer meeting from 8 to 9:15, followed by class periods taking up such topics as Christian evangelism, budgeting and music appreciation; general lecture at 10:45; afternoon devoted to recreation; evening services at 7:15; taps at 10:15."

CANALS

A Panama newspaper editor questions whether the United States really wants to build that Nicaragua Canal. He suspects that we're merely making a bluff to keep other countries away.

He shouldn't be too sure of that. Uncle Sam is going on pretty strong for canals lately, what with taking over the New York and Illinois Canals and getting up an appetite for that sort of thing. He may soon be building the St. Lawrence Canal with one hand and the Nicaragua Canal with the other.

CROPS ELSEWHERE

Switzerland is facing an agricultural crisis. Too violent storms have destroyed crops of wheat, corn, potatoes and fruit. Prices are soaring. Many farmers are ruined. The country must depend on Canadian wheat.

It may be a small matter, but world events are reckoned. But it is as serious to the Swiss people as our agricultural misfortunes are to us. Maybe more so. Nature still beats man at his own game. When she starts in to dry up a country, she does it.

Based on average yields for the last nine years and the average prices of grains during the first six months of 1932, the average value of an acre of wheat is $17.38, of oats $14.83 and of rye $12.68.

Because the market for wheat is falling off, lumbermen advise farmers not to cut their walnut trees until they are sold.

"The SEA BRIDE" THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE
By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FAITH KILCUP had visions of a happy married life with Noll Wing, captain of the whaler, Sally Sims, but dissipation had changed him from a strong master to a complaining, old man, constantly gripped by the fear of revenge for having kicked out the eye of Mauder, one of the crew. Dan'l Tobey, a mate, is in love with Faith. When the Sally Sims' stops at an island, Faith meets an ex-asser, named Brander, who joins Noll's crew. Dan'l is jealous of Brander, and also instills in Faith's brother, Roy, a dislike of him. When Noll rebukes Brander for assisting Mauder, Brander's pluck in defying him wins Noll's admiration. Later in a battle with a whale, the first mate loses his life. Dan'l fills the vacancy. Noll calls a meeting of the officers to select a fourth mate. Dan'l, fearing Brander will be chosen, suggests Roy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

"HIS never been in a boat," old Tichel snapped.

"I know the boy," Dan'l insisted. "You're under a week. He needs to learn in a week. He knows boats well enough; he has guts and heart. All he needs to know is whaling. Mr. Cox scornfully. 'Aye, that's all; but who does know them?'"

Dan'l smiled.

"You might well enough ask, Mr. Cox," Willis flushed painfully.

"He's just a kid," he protested. "You were almost three months older when you struck your first whale, if I mind right," said Dan'l pleasantly.

"That's enough," Noll Wing interrupted harshly. "Silva and Roy. Who would you have, Mr. Cox?"

"Only one man aboard," said Willis.

"And that's who? I've no mind for conundrums," said Cox.

Noll seemed to slump a little in his chair; he smiled wearily. Dan'l Tobey thought the captain had never looked so old. His big fist on the table moved a little from side to side, then was still.

In the silence that followed they all heard the voice of Roy Kilcup from the deck above. The lad was crying to Faith in a trembling whisper.

"Dan'l wants to make me mate," he said.

"He wants to make me mate?" His voice was so tremulous, so obviously the voice of a boy, that every man of them save Dan'l Tobey smiled.

"He's over-enthusiastic yet, Dan'l," Noll said slowly. "Teach him the trade, happen, some day, we'll have a mate."

Dan'l was betrayed by anger into indiscretion.

"Over-enthusiastic, that may be," he exclaimed; "but not a Portuguese, and not a beach-comber."

Noll held up his big hand, silencing Dan'l. He looked from man to man, and said slowly, as if in great awe:

"I've no liking for Brander. He dard me to my face, fother day. But there's this—he holds the crew. They like him. He's a man; he knows the job, and he does not know how to be afraid. Also, he has a right to the post. If we could give it to him, it might well be a blessing. It's a trouble for us. I think, that's the seeming of it to me."

"I never heard that Cap'n Wing feared any man," Dan'l said harshly.

Noll smiled.

"Age brings wisdom, Dan'l. I'm learning to fear too."

Dan'l Tobey found Brander on the forecastle deck, later. Brander was working with three of the crew. Dan'l asked him to go down to the fore-cabin and see if he could find a mate for him. Brander looked at him for a moment, and then said as if an electric spark of curiosity passed between them. Their eyes clashed, but Dan'l spoke pleasantly.

"Get your traps and come aft to the cabin, Brander," he said.

meet his responsibility; he must be master.

She worked to this end unceasingly; but on the whole her efforts were without avail. Noll steadily degenerated. His strength fled from him.

Faith was so concerned with Noll that she gave little heed to the hostility between Dan'l Tobey and Brander. These two fought their fight without her interference.

The struggle between them was a curious thing. On Dan'l's side, it was a constant and persistent effort to harass Brander and discredit him; on Brander's side, it was a good-natured opposition to this effort. When Dan'l gave Brander two men's work to do, Brander smiled—and did it. When Dan'l blamed Brander for what was another's fault, or no fault at all, Brander smiled and cheerfully took the blame. Now and then he looked at Dan'l with a blue flash of anger in his eyes; but for the most part he was good-humored; he seemed amused by his enemy's maneuvers, nothing more.

Dan'l chose, one day, to take Brander to task at dinner in the cabin. Noll and Faith were there, and the four mates. Brander, as was his duty, came down last; he sat at the foot of the board. The Sally was cruising idly, watching for a spout. Brander and Willis Cox had been on deck before dinner. There was little for either of them to do, save watch for any chance of harm, or wait for word of a whale.

When Brander came down, he caught Faith's eye from the foot of the companion-ladder, and Faith nodded and said:

"Good morning!"

Brander smiled. Dan'l looked at Faith, and at Brander; and he gripped his chair to hold back a hot word that would have ruined him.

Brander sat down at the foot of the table. Noll seemed scarce to know that he had come, and Faith nodded to Brander to pass his plate. Brander did so, and Faith served him. The plate went back to Brander.

"Mr. Brander," Dan'l said slowly, "I mean hatch was not fast when I came down. Did you secure it?"

Brander looked up quickly and smiled.

"No, sir," he said. "I—"

"Why not?" Dan'l demanded acidly. "Are you waiting for a squall to tear it off?"

"I had it made fast, sir, before Mr. Brander came on deck," said Willis Cox.

Dan'l crimsoned in spite of himself. Old Tichel grinned unpleasantly. Brander smiled. Faith looked at Dan'l and waited for his word of acknowledgment. Dan'l saw her eyes.

"Then, of course," he said to Brander, "you couldn't make it fast. Why didn't you say so, since it was done before you came on deck?"

"Sorry, sir," Brander replied soberly; but his eyes were twinkling.

"What use to explain? Dan'l could not be in a worse light, and Dan'l knew it."

"What is so funny?" he said hotly.

Noll Wing rumbled from the head of the table, where he had seemed concerned only with his food.

"Let 'em be! Let 'em be! The thing is done. That's all that's needful, Mr. Tobey."

Dan'l got hold of himself.

"Right, sir," he said respectfully. Copyright, 1932, by Ben Ames Williams. Published by the New York Evening Post. (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

There is Always Danger of Tetanus, Says Authority, Urging Care and Cleanliness

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I RECENTLY received a letter from a mother whose son had been very ill with tetanus. She wishes to know something more about this serious condition.

Tetanus is an infectious disease, characterized by rigid, or unrelaxing, spasms of the muscles. The more familiar name is "lock-jaw," as the symptom commonly seen is a clamping or rigidity of the jaws.

Usually the first symptom is a feeling of stiffness in the neck muscles. The stiffness spreads to the muscles of the jaw and of the face. The muscles of the throat become involved, causing difficulty in swallowing.

As the body muscles are affected and the spasms develop, the body may be so arched as to be raised from the bed, until only the head and heels are touching the bed. The spasms are accompanied by terrific pain.

To avoid trouble all wounds must be carefully looked after. If there is the least suspicion that a wound has been made by some infected article, be sure to thoroughly cleanse the wound and use antiseptics. If necessary, cauterization is desirable. As soon as possible tetanus antitoxin should be administered by your physician.

As the symptoms develop the patient must be kept quiet in a dark room. All irritations, such as light, heat or sound, jarring of the bed, or even a light touch, should be avoided. They bring on the spasms.

The skin must be obtained. To this end sedatives will be prescribed by the doctor in charge.

There is a valuable serum used to prevent death from tetanus. Your doctor will tell you about it.

AT THE GRAND

"Under a Texas Moon," Warner Bros. first 100% talking, singing, outdoor picture in technicolor, which comes to the Grand Theatre Sunday next is an adaptation of Stewart Edward White's "The Two Gun Man."

It recounts the gay adventures of another Don Juan, an ingratulating liar, who, with two guitar-strumming companions, makes amorous pilgrimages through the cattle country, capturing thieves and barely escaping capture—only to ride jauntily on, hunting new adventure.

The scenes of "Under a Texas Moon" are exquisite, all being taken in the colors of nature. The capable cast is headed by the inimitable Frank Fay as Don Carlos. Many of the famous beauties of the screen are included, among them Armida, Raquel Torres, Myrna Loy, Mona Maria, Betty Boyd and Edythe Kramer. Western bad men are played by Noah Beery, Tully Marshall, George Stone, George Cooper, Fred Kohler, Jack Curtis, Sam Appel, Tom Dix, Jerry Barrett, Francisco Maran, Charles Sellon and Bruce Covington. Michael Curtiz directed.

"Under a Texas Moon" captures the spirit of romance as few other pictures have ever done. The pastel shades which reveal colors without wearying the eye are one of its great charms. Scenes of pastured lands with thousands of cattle—Indians in gay blankets, beads and feathers—Spanish beauties—rose-covered haciendas—cloud formations—trees—shimmering water. The sound reproductions are flawless—and there is the bewitching song "Under a Texas Moon." Here is a film of utter and unique loveliness.

AT THE MET

Only too rarely does one see assembled in a western picture such an imposing array of individual stars as are gathered together in "Firebrand Jordan" which is at the Met Theatre. Headed by the popular Lane Chandler, the cast includes Sheldon Lewis, Yakima Canutt, Tom London, Cliff Lyons, and many others of merit.

The picture is a western of exceptional excellence, having a fine, exciting story, and the type of fast action which fans look for but do not often encounter. Plunges, down ravines, and breakneck chases followed by furious fights and dangerous "gun play," come in such rapid succession that the audience was constantly kept on the edge of its seats.

The story is carefully worked out with detail of action, and is distinguished by setting of a very high calibre. The recording is so excellent as to leave nothing to be desired.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Marion Davies' newest all-talking picture, "The Florodora Girl," a story of the Gay Nineties, will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Cliftona Theatre.

An imposing cast was selected for this picture, including Lawrence Gray, who played opposite Miss Davies in "Marianne," Walter Catlett, the stage comedian, recently seen in "Rio Rita" and "George White's Scandals;" Louis John Bartels, star of "The Show Off," Sam Hardy, Nance O'Neill, Ilka Chase, Vivian Oakland, Jed Prouty and Claude Allister and a large group of minor players.

"I'd really like to shout the good news to other housewives," says many a clever woman who has found how easy it is to realize extra ready money—and also get rid of old things in the way around the house.

All you have to do is phone a Herald Ad-taker and tell her what you have to sell.

Markey with additional dialogue by Ralph Spence, Al Boasberg and Robert Hopkins. Harry Beaumont directed. Songs heard in the picture include a reprise of many familiar old popular tunes rendered by a chorus. Lawrence Gray sings the theme number called "My Kind of Man," which was written by Herbert Stothart, Clifford Grey and Andy Rice.

Information is that "The Florodora Girl" depicts the adventure and the romance of one of the members of the "Florodora Sex tette," which was the sensation of twenty years ago. This bevy of beauties has held more romantic interest than any group of chorus girls in the history of the theatre. It is said on well substantiated authority that all six of these girls married millionaires.

AT THE GRAND

Hap and Jack are coming to Circleville in person.

Those two versatile boys, Hap and Jack, claimed to be the biggest broadcasting radio feature since Jack and Gene, and the most popular stars to appear at radio station WCAH, in Columbus, since its opening regime, are to appear in person at the Grand Theatre for three days commencing Thursday and their engagement terminating Saturday, Aug. 30.

At a great deal of added expense the Grand Manager, Walke Baughman, has added the personal appearance of these clever radio artists to the regular excellent photo-plays, not charging an added admission to the regular prices.

Hap and Jack are synopate harmonists, second to none, are now a big broadcasting team, appearing over the air at 1-10 from station WCAH in Columbus every day. Tune in on them every day at the above time, hear the clever program, then forward march to the Grand commencing Thursday night and hear these versatile boys in person.

Hap and Jack are known as the rapid fire song writers, and if you care to leave an original title to the theater box office, they will write an original song around you title and dedicate it to you for the stage of the Grand so give us your song titles now.

HAP and JACK Lauded by Star Board of Aeronautics

The biggest feature at the Star Fair according to shown interest is the Aeroplone building with many models of Army, Navy and commercial airplanes. And the biggest feature according to the members of the board, next to the wonderful air display, was the personal appearance of radio's most popular stars, Hap and Jack, during today's program. They said only Hap and Jack can entertain hundreds of their entertaining period.

time of chlorine gas after twenty-six person, including thirteen city firemen, were overcome when a poisonous cloud of the gas swept thru the plant of the Denver Fire Clay Company late yesterday.

Forming from a leak in a gigantic railway tank, the poisonous gas cloud swept thru the plant, driving 120 panic stricken workmen before it. Ten men and a girl stenographer were overcome, and thirteen firemen, the entire roster of Engine Company No. 10, were overcome a few minutes after they arrived on the scene.

The victims were taken to Denver General hospital, where all were reported to be showing symptoms comparable to soldiers gassed in the World War. The conditions of several are said to be critical.

The leak in the huge gas tank was stemmed by I. W. Gibbs, a workman of the Clay Company, who donned one of the firemen's gas mask and closed the valves in the pressure gauge from which the stream of poison liquid was shooting, instantly transformed into a gas cloud on contact with the atmosphere. The leak started as workmen were transferring the gas in liquid form from the large tank into smaller tanks.

GEORGE KELLY RIGHT AT HOME AMONG FRAGILE CHICAGO CUBS

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Always but how to avoid being injured, his nose held high near the sort of become perilously familiar where he may partake of, with "Lefty" O'Doul's spikes in a current factory smoke and air—league contest and was host to fumes, George Lange Kelly himself nothing more than a roughly satisfied today in his first baseman job with the team seeking Chicago Cubs. It is this man Kelly, who is very much of a pole, even though he is Polish, and who never fails to enjoy himself immensely at all, should experience downright in his current environment, being the type of player who usually plays one game and then hobbles the next two, may disappear among the Cubs, for one in the majors is more notable than they in the matter of being out and laying up players.

Practically every McCarthy has already been stricken at one time or another with the ailment or other and it really seemed that his phenomenal record would be shattered unless, perhaps each victim were to be completely again following his buttons would be duly worn off. Indeed, this is precisely what has occurred in a few cases for the most part there was a rather alarming decrease of altruistic souls whose motto is "if you receive one black don't decline another. The first is bound to be better than the first on the theory that practice makes perfect." So with the long-etched Mr. Kelly in the fold, all the club's ills should be soothed at any rate, Kelly may forego granks and stick healthy. With doubt this would also be of invaluable aid to the Bruins. Charley Am, veteran first baseman, who was everything about baseball.

Toward the end of 1911 Kelly died to Rochester where he was turned to exhaustion George then played the best ball of his life during 1918, for he was enlisted in the army all year. The following season Kelly was let loose from the Giants entirely, along with Waite Hoyt and some cash for "Catcher" "Oil" Smith. Kelly really began hitting by this time and after compiling a 356 mark and knocking Hal Chase for the Giants who recalled him. Since then, George developed into more than an ordinary ball player, mixing ability with versatility until his game became profound.

It is to be assumed that George never forgot the art of being incapacitated. George always maintained that talent and this is probably the reason why Joe McCarthy constantly encompassed by hospital atmosphere, and cognizant of Kelly's seasickness on ball fields is winking his signals through one eye and blinking his apprehensiveness for Kelly through the other.

CARNERA AND BIG BOY MEET

Fight in Atlantic City Tomorrow Night May Test Giant Italian Pug.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Down in Atlantic City tomorrow night, they again are going to slip the big chains off Primo Carnera, the beeg carbo, under a sun lamp and stamp and champ in the good, old medicine show, perhaps for the last time before he breathes in with the championship flight, perhaps for the last time anywhere. He was dally with an experimental guma pig called Lucardo Bertazzola who is doubtless no better than his name implies, and what Carnera may do and how he does it will be of considerable import. The man either is very good or very bad, therefore, his next time out may always be his last or the beginning of a very useful life.

The department of management itself was a bit nonplussed by this matter not more than a few weeks ago. It even went so far as to order the fellow to leave the country but a compromise was effected whereby he promised to stay almost indefinitely. It was all very simple. The department told Primo to go but he said he would be glad to stay, so everything was fixed up nicely.

However, even though he finds it inconvenient to leave the country just now, he wants to do the right thing by the government and will begin tomorrow night by leaving Atlantic City. It is only a coincidence that about $100,000 is liable to leave with him. They tell me this fight can't miss.

The arena, according to estimates, will seat 40,000 and, with a million people at the resort over the holidays, it ought to be like selling tickets at a subway station.

This Bertazzola has nothing to do with size and a resolute chin. He has never been knocked out, they say, but neither have I, so that's all even. The answer means about the same in both cases.

BRITISH TRADE REVIVAL SEEN

LONDON.—Belief that a great trade revival is imminent in Britain is strengthened by the shipping figures of 1929, just published.

Britain lost 7,760,000 tons of shipping during the war. Despite this, in 1929, the total shipping which entered and cleared from the Port of London was 17,000,000 tons more than in 1914.

A Liverpool, in 1929, the increase was more than 13,000,000 tons. Southampton showed an increase of over 9,000,000 tons. Hull 2,000,000 tons. The Tyne ports and Glasgow, despite extremely adverse conditions, were back where they were in 1914.

Mrs. George Dalgair and son Jimmy are guests of Mrs. Lawrence E. Goeller.

FIND ANCIENT ROMAN CITADEL

REGENSBURG. An ancient Roman citadel, discovered in the course of erecting a dam on the Danube in the village of Steinkirchen, has been completely buried. It is of stone, some 75 yards long and 65 yards wide, and appears to have been built in the middle of the second century of the Christian era, and to have been abandoned and in part destroyed a century later.

Some 60 Roman graves have been discovered nearby, and not far from them is an iron burial place dating from the early Hallstatt period, about 1100 B.C. Here twelve graves have already been opened.

BLIND, MAN KNOWS YOUTHFUL HOLDUP

DENVER. Blindness did not hamper Orrin Marshall, aged Negro broom salesman, from giving police a good description of a youth who swindled him out of a day's earnings recently. Marshall advised police that the culprit was about 13 years old, five feet seven inches in height, and weighed between 125-130 pounds. He determined the boy's age by his voice, his height by the direction of his voice, and his approximate weight by feeling his hand in the exchange of money.

Opera Roles Make Heavy Drain On Physical Stamina, Say Stars

Songsters Of Metropolitan Hail Demise Of Craze For Boyish Form

By Mable Love

SINGING in the famous Metropolitan Opera, far from being solely a matter of talent, training the vocal cords, and some skill in acting, imposes a physical strain demanding the singer's closest attention to the effort to maintain the same degree of physical perfection as is the goal of the athlete. To this effect both Mary Lewis and Madame Mario give the weight of their indisputable testimony.

"To become a success in the operatic field," says Mary Lewis, considered by many to be the world's most beautiful opera star, "a foremost consideration must be the necessary stamina to carry one through. Singing is largely physical. It really exercises the entire body, and the voice very quickly betrays the lack of physical endurance."

Now living in Hollywood where she is making her motion picture debut, the singer tells of seeing a young movie actress pause suddenly in front of the camera, stare wildly about her, and fall in a dead faint. Investigation revealed she was another victim of the 18-day diet fad. "Three times I saw the same scene enacted in Hollywood," Miss Lewis says. "I can't imagine what makes a girl do such a silly thing. It would be impossible for a singer, anyway, for if one is not in perfect health it is impossible to sing well."

Aside from the singing itself, Madame Mario points out that many roles call into play the muscles of the body. "In Hansel and Gretel," she says, "I jump and kick and skip about through the whole performance."

To keep herself in the proper physical trim, Madame Mario is careful to obtain sufficient exercise off the stage as well as on it. She jumps rope and is an ardent lover of horse-back riding. She sleeps nine or ten hours out of the twenty-four and eats plenty of nourishing foods, avoiding all fads. Possessing a well-developed sweet tooth, she recalls an certain amount of energy which is supplied by carbohydrates, and the ice cream soda, containing this in the form of sugar and chocolate, supplied me with the very thing I needed. As I am very fond of sweets, this was pleasant news."

Like Mary Lewis, Madame Mario has nothing good to say for the recent boyish figure craze. "I am

POLICE ARE FIRED, TORTURED WOMAN

BELGRADE.—The government officially announces that those police officials who were charged with torturing Frau Isolda Reiter, a German woman journalist, have been discharged.

The police officials were accused of having beaten Frau Reiter for hours at a time in order to extort from her a "confession" which was to furnish a basis for prosecuting leaders of the German minority in Yugoslavia for treason.

Frau Reiter sent a complaint to Premier Sivkovich, but the complaint was held up till news of the torturing reached the outside world, whereupon Premier Sivkovich ordered an investigation. The discharge of the guilty policemen was the result.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wood of Washington D. C., were the overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Lukens, Thursday.
